The Happy Household.

EDITOR'S RASPBEERY BOLL. HAPPY HOUSEHOLD: Here is something excellent, eaten with rich milk or cream; Fill a goodsized dinner pot half full of water and cover. While t comes to the boil prepare your raspberry roll as follows: To one pint of flour add a pinch of sait and as much baking powder, heaped up, as will lay on a telespoon. Mix well and wet with sweet milk or water. Roll into a sheet, cover with fresh raspherries, sprinkle with sugar, lap the sides over and roll like jelly sponge cake. Have a muslin bag ready, dip to scalding water, sprinkle with flour and insert the raspberry roll. Boil steadily for three-quarters of an hour. Be very careful it does not stop boiling, and do not uncover until ready to remove. And be sure the water is boiling when the roll is put in, or it will be like trying to bake in a cold oven.

TOMATO SOUP WITH MILE. Happy Household: My husband was a mem-ber of the 14th Wis, and though we have strayed far from our Northern home we feel that our lines have failen in pleasant places, and are just as glad to welcome THE THIRDE as formerly and to read letters and recipes from our old friends. I will send E. B. Leach the tomato soup recipe asked for, one that has been well tried in our family and liked: One quart of tomatoes, one of water; stew till soft. Add tempoonful of soda, (allow to effer-vesce,) quart of boiling milk, suit, butter and pepper to taste, with a little rolled cracker. Boil a few minutes and serve.—Helen Mack, 11th street, Park Pince, Chattanooga, Tenn. EDITOR'S TOMATO SOUP. Soup made in this way is very palatable, quickly prepared and economical: Have ready one quart stewed tourstoes: if lumpy, put them through the colander. Mix together one tablespoonful of flour, one table-poorful of butter, one tenspoonful each of salt and sugar, and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of sods. Add enough of the tomate to make a running better and stir into the bolling tomate. Turn the soup over and serve hot.

MRS. LINCOLN'S TOMATO SOUP. One quart stewed tomatoes, one plut hot water, one tablespoonful sugar, one teaspoonful salt, four cloves, four peppercorns (or one teaspoonful white pepper), tablespoonful butter, tablespoonful chop-ped calon, tablespoonful chopped parsley, table-aponful cornstaveh. Put the butter in a saucepan, with onions and parsley, and fry gently for five minutes, then add the cornstarch. Stir this into and simmer 10 minutes. Strain and serve with tousted erackers.

HAPPY HOUSEHOLD: I am very much interested in "Loyal Woman's Work," and would add my contribution to its columns, For feather cake, to be eaten fresh, take two cups flour, one cup sugar, two-thirds cup sweet milk, one tablespoonful butter, one tenspoonful baking but the first little lemon extract.

Boswell, Mt. Vernon, III. "The Two verses and Boswell butter, one tenspoonful baking paper flowers.—Mabel Johnson, Box 701, Southing-paper flowers.—Mabel Johnson, Box 701, Southing-pa linke as a louf or in gem time. I have some nice patterns for little boys five to eight, which I will forward on receipt of stamps, at the rate of 10 cents each, or 25 cents for suit of four pleces.—Mrs. Wm. H. Mackey, Goodrich, Mich., wife 128th N. Y. veteran. Editor's Chat. If Edith will read "Editor's Chat" of a week or

Will M. Bethell please send State, that request for music may appear.

Mrs. H. S. Perkins, East Saginaw, Mich.; Cora Taylor, a little cook of 12, Maurice, Iowa, and Mrs. Helen Mack, Chattanooga, Tenn., each send a recipe for tomato soup, by request of E. B. Leach. As they are all the same the earliest dated has been chosen. It is pleasant to knew that our good housekeepers North and South are using the same recipes. For the benefit of those who may not have the milk, the Editor's recipe is also given, and one of Mrs. Lincoln's, of Boston cookery fame. Conversation Club, Rules of the Club .- 1. Write briefly. 2. Write only on one side of the paper. 3. Write to the point. 4. Write on one subject. 5. Write your best. 6. Bend maswers to all puzzles for use of Editor. Each week the names of those writing the best lettersstyle, composition, spelling, penmanship and general merit considered—will be named at the head of this column on the Honor Roll. First honor will include all of these requirements. Second honor will include a delicioney in some one point. No others will be named.

OUR ANNIE'S OPINIONS. FRIENDS OF THE C. C.: May I give my opinion on two questions that have lately appeared in THE TRUBUNE? First, while I think the "Southern gentleman" deserved punishment for assaulting so cowardly one of our boys in blue, yet I think we ought not to judge all Southerners by him. Could you have been here the 17th and 18th of June and seen at Lynn and Boston the ex-Confederate Veterans' Camps from Richmond, Va., as they were welcomed by their former enemies, the G.A.R. and citizens, and in the ranks seen a blue and gray together side by side, you would, I hope, think as I do, and say you were glad the Northand South were becoming united. Perhaps I have as much cause to dislike the South and her people as any of the C. C. For had it not been for the cruel war my father would not have died these. Bury the hatchet deep as possible, I say. Then, about the C. C. sending address of postmaster, etc., that granted our C. C. Iriends are honest and smoore in all they say. But I know the little rascal fraud will creep in and trouble us. Pwe seen him for one.

My C. C. friends may write to postmaster here will ler, Belle Vernon, Pa. they wish .- Annie L. Marsh, Saugus, Mass.

SOME WESTERN HOMES. Reading Miss Day's letter leads to a contrast with Florida wenther in Winter, Here at Hope the thermometer for three weeks at a stretch was below zero. Hope is on the St. Paul, Momeapolis & Manitobs Railroad, has almost 150 inhabitants and one paper, The Hope Pioneer, U. E. Curry, Hope, D. T.

We are a soldier family through and through; came from Wisconain a year ago to our prairie home, near Canton, Dak., a place of about 2,000 inhabitants. Father belonged to Co. G. 7th Wis., and lost three brothers in the army, one killed at Perryville. Mother's haller and two brothers were in the army, and although grandfather was 51 when he enlisted, he can get no pension. Canton, on the Bioux River, is sometimes called the Gate City, because so near the boundary line between Minnesota and Dakota. I cannot agree with Green Mountain Girl. Give me the broad prairies to mountain scenery. Rend Laura A. Temple on the beauties of the West. Was pleased with Ed Walines, and hope to hear again.—E. Myra Nims, Canton, Dak. My home is four mises from Columbus, Cherokee Co., Kan., a town of 2,500 inhabitants. The country is underlaid with bituminous coal, the veins varying from one to four feet in thickness. Kan-Cherokee is a mong the leading Counties of the State.

sas takes high rank in educational matters, and It has 10 graded schools and a Normal School every year. Commbus built a $10,000 High School last year. Friends of the C. C. who have a poor opin-ion of Kausas should come out and take a view of our nice country.- Belie Musters. I am from the wilds of Minnesota, where blizzards are ripe and ready for barvest in October. So, you see, this is the only time in the year I am thawed out so as to write. But the country, if cold, is all right. To be sure, we cannot raise corn, but we can grow wheat and flax, and make money by it.

To those of the C. C. who may be curious of the meaning of Pipe Stone, applied to our little city, I would say that it is from a peculiar stone, held sacred by the Northwest Indians as a token of peace, and they come here in great multitudes every year to quarry and work it up into trinkets. The slone is of a red color, and is so soft that it can be worked with a common pocket-knife, I will send specimens of the stone to anyone who will write to me, with postage stamps to pay for transmittal.—E. H. Price, Pipe Stone City, Minn.

CLUB WHISPERS. My papa was a member of the company of which Gen. Warner, of Ohio, was first Captain. At Auam, when he was Lieutenant-Colonel commanding the 10th Pa. Reserves, pa and some of his comrades caught him when falling from his horsestruck by a rebel bullet. In the Gettysburg campaign, as Colonel in command, and still suffering from his wounds, walking on two canes and helped on and off his horse, he was always on duty. He was always one of the very best officers in looking after his men, and pa thinks thinks it strange he should at last go back on them, as he evidently has.—Jennie Brown, St. Charles, Iowa. Will some one tell me who Kuhiman was, and what he invented; also, something of the invention of the telephone?-Ethlin M. Dunham, Gatesville, Kan, Would like some one to write a condensed ac count of the siege of Troy, its cause and result. I liked "Hoosier School Girl's" letter. I like Whittier, and think it better to read poetry, even if it be a little heavy, than novels. Think physical Culture a good step, and would like to see a Social Purity Society, forbidding intoxicants, tobacco and profane language. - "Hoosier School Boy." I have been waiting for the wise ones to come to | Conu. the front and tell us about the circular platting survey of Overton and Warren Counties, Tenn., and also the highest altitude ever reached by a balloon. They have failed to respond. So far I have not seen the first word from them on this subject. The highest altitude I have ever heard of was that reached by Mr. James Glaisher, of England, which was seven and half miles, the barom eter standing at seven. I hope Mrs. Page will succeed in killing that old fox; he must be some relation to the one that jumped over the tazy dog; in has the same number of letters. No doubt Mr Cariton will get his five dozen quills, especially if the cash accompanied the order. E. I. Adams's brief is a good one, but I like the sentiment of Mary E. Sanders's best, although it takes 10 more etters than the shortest to complete it .- J. A. Sanders, Bath, Me. We in Iowa are now especially interested in physiology, for our Legislature last year passed a law requiring that the moral and physical effect of cohol be taught in the public schools of the State owa has done much toward destroying the liquor traffic, but it seems to me that a death-blow was struck when this law was passed. The saloon will cease to exist when the demand for liquor is stopped, and when the next generation come to maturity, well informed in all the terrible effects of alcohol, the curse of the saloon will pass away Teach a child from the day he enters school unti he leaves that strong drink will weaken his body, ruin his mind and destroy his soul, and he will be unlikely to touch the poison or east his vote for it. We must educate public sentiment from the foundation, and the power of the saloon is gone.—

"Seed 'em a Doing It." [Pall Mall Gazette.]

It is almost impossible for country people to recognize the dense ignorance as to all matters agricultural and rural from which the children of the London poor suffer. A day or two ago the parson of a London parish asked one of the children who had been boarded out under the new poor law regulations how he enjoyed the change of air and scenery. "Please, sir," said the urchin, "I don't like it at all; instead of If you want one send your name at once to giving me milk out of a nice clean tin they squeezes it out of a nasty cow-I seed 'em a

Some Practical Suggestions for Our Agricultural Readers.

TO SOFTEN HORSES' FEET.

EDITOR NATIONAL TRIPUNE: In answer to query of J. B. C., Norwich, Conn., in issue of June 23, I would advise him to first get made by any blacksmith a hoof hook with which to perfectly clean the bottom of the horse's foot. Then fill a common-sized box with a mixture of common cow manure (fresh) and clay, made thick enough to adhere to the horse's foot, and morning and night fill the bottom of the foot to the surface of the shoe. This mixture will hold moisture a long time, and having tried everything else I have found it the most efficient, and I have charge of nearly a hundred horses. Another good plan is to make a shallow box, say four inches in depth and three by four feet square, fill with mud, and, taking off the horses's shoes, let him stand all day with his forefeet in the box of mud. This will have the same effect. Painting the bottom of the hoof with neatsfoot and linseed oil is also good. -WM. A. BERRY, Blanden Stock Farm, Manson, Iowa.

TAKE CARE OF THE SOIL. A man making much pretension to knowledge of the soil and its properties once said of the wonderfully productive soil in the West, that we could not exhaust its productive powers. Don't believe a word of it. Unless means are used to "keep up" the soil, use will "put it down," as sure as the world stands. Prof. Chamberlain, now of the Iowa Agricultural College, and long before Secretary of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, gives a very valuable paper on "How to keep up the fer-tility of the soil." He says stable manure is the best fertilizer on earth.

Mixed farming produces the best results, because the feed given to the stock is in turn fed back to the soil. Save all manure, both liquid and solid. They should be mixed to get best results. Don't run liquids into a tank, but use absorbents and keep them together. The best way to apply manure is to take it direct from the stable to the field where it is to be used. Don't let it heat and "firefang." He likened the practice of letting manure lie under the eaves to get the drip and run away, to steeping tea and coffee, and throwing away the liquor and eating the dregs. The kinds of food best adapted to milk production are the best for manure. One hundred dollars' worth of cheese takes from the farm less than 1-7 the fertility taken by $100 worth of grain, while $100 worth of butter-if the skim milk is fed on the farm -takes nothing from the soil. For potatoes, use well-rotted manure. For corn, plow it uneconomy. Better feed it to the cow first. She don't want the elements the soil wants. The Professor told of an experiment at the college last Summer: Two pieces of potatoes were planted side by side. One heavily manured stood the drouth fairly well and produced 150 bushels per acre. Where no manure was used, only 50 bushels per acre were realized .- Ex-

CULTIVATING CEOPS. Old methods of farming are compelled to give way to more improved and less laborious ones. As the old-fashioned hand scythe and grain cradle have been obliged to give way to mower and reaper, so the use of the hand hoe is gradually falling into disuse upon a system of field culture. The farmers of half a century ago, who in the cultivation of their crops spent day after day with the hoe in hand, would view with jealousy the work now performed with horse hoes. At that remote date, with only hoes of rude make, none dreamed that the corn and potatoes could be tended by the use of an implement drawn by a horse, but such is the fact, and in it there is found a partial solution at least of the difficulty that has been felt in some sections of procuring reliable help. The use of such an implement is more effectual in the destruction of weeds and stirring the soil in a proper manner than half a score or more of men who make poor use of hand hoes. There is a great difference of men in the use of the hand hoe; some might as well sit on the fence and look at the corn as to go over it in the slipshod manner that they do in the exercise of their duties.

- Stagnant water is detrimental to all kinds of crops, and for that reason all fields should be tiled or underdrained in some manner. Underdrainage carries off the surplus water and allows more air and heat to enter the earth. - Level culture is better than hilling, as it enables the cultivator and harrow to be used with greater facility, while the rains do not flow off as rapidly, which is a very important matter during dry seasons, when light showers occur only at long intervals.

- The simultaneous development of the bone, wool, fat and muscle in the system of the sheep requires a wide diversity of elements in the food. It would be impossible, for instance, EDITOR NATIONAL TRIBUNE: Some time in | to get ewes to thrive well on a diet of corn the month of June, 1863, there was quite a lit- alone; they would grow too fat and would tle skirmish about 20 miles south or southwest amount to nothing.
